This test requires no special knowledge. There are NO QUESTIONS . . . and thus, there are no right or wrong answers. It's just a pen-and-paper exercise. The test is based on your movements. How you move reflects how you think and process information. PLEASE NOTE: The speed of your movements is very important. You should take the test at your natural speed. Slowing down for beauty or legibility is to your disadvantage.

Part One: Shapes

On a single sheet of plain white paper, please draw (by freehand) one or more of each of the following shapes: a triangle, a square, a circle, and a ladder. They can be of any size. Do NOT trace the shapes or use a ruler, straight edge, compass or other device. Near the bottom of the page, please print clearly your name, phone number, and email address.

Part Two: Numbers

On a single sheet of plain white paper, write 10 different numbers of any size. Near the bottom of the page, please print clearly your name, phone number, and email address.

Part Three: Words

On two or more sheets of plain white paper, please copy the following paragraphs twice, once in your (cursive) handwriting and once in your printing. Remember, speed is more important than beauty or legibility.

Tommy Lasorda, the former Manager of the Los Angeles Dodgers, says, "There are three types of baseball players: those who make it happen, those who watch it happen, and those who wondered what happened."

B.C. Forbes once said, "Study the conspicuously successful business giants and you will be struck by the fact that almost every one of them encountered inordinate difficulties sufficient to crush all but the gamest of spirits." Thomas Edison went hungry many times before he became famous.

Mark Twain once wrote, "If you pick up a starving dog, and make him prosperous, he will not bite you. This is the principal difference between a man and a dog."

Alexander Graham Bell, the inventor of the phone, said, "When one door closes, another opens; but we often look so long and so regretfully upon the closed door that we do not see the one which has opened for us."

Please sign your name twice near the bottom of each page. Also, please print clearly your name, phone number, and email address near the bottom of each page as well.
